Speaking of Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving, 1898 ranks in importance with that of 1865. As then, the country has gone through the war, and upon our banners is inscribed Victory. It is, therefore, a season of greater interest. In honor of the occasion, The Boston Herald, with characteristic enterprise, will give it special attention, devoting pages to the time-honc red festival in the issue of Nov. 20. Every New Englander will want this issue, and we are sure that our readers will find the Boston Herald of Sunday, Nov. 20, one to their liking. It is not out of place to suggest that an order with your newsdealer is the only sure way of securing a copy. The demand for the Boston HerLYNDONVILLE.

makers."-New York Sun.

An ordinary service to mankind is usually paid for at current rates in legal tender. An extraordinary service, not involving the element of heroism, is rewarded by both legal tender and more or less fame. The highest of all services, rendered at the risk of life, is supposed to receive its full compensation in glory, unaccompanied by more sordid considerations. If, however, the hero of the service last mentioned should not be contented with his meed of glory, but should demand more substantial reward. he may receive it indeed, but at a large discount from the other (and in sentimental estimation more valuable) consideration. Unlike the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, who receive their quid pro quo without a thought of humiliation, either in their own minds or yours, the man who saves your life at the risk of his own is looked upon as almost if not quite disgracing himself by accepting your proffered pecuniary reward, although he may, in fact, be in far sorer need than any one of the worthy trio who simply contribute to your necessities or comforts .-Edward P. Absentmindedly Brooks stepped up to the cashier's desk and paid for his Inncheon Then, accompanied by Rivers, he went out into the open air.

"Brooks," said Rivers, "you'd better go back and settle for your dinner if you don't want the proprietor to follow you out and dun you right here on the

There are probably not less than a score of men walking about New Orleans today who are decorated under their lapels with large tin stars bearing the cabalistic word "detective." They are patrons of the various private agencies of the north that advertise for "shrewd men as operatives in all parts of the country," and supply the tin star and a beautifully lithographed "certificate" for the trifling sum of $5. The wearers of their insignia labor under the hallucination, as a rule, that they are vested with some special right to collar their fellow men. The same agencies do a land office business in wigs, false beards and other disguises which the amateur sleuth believes firmly are part of the necessary equipment of the profession. Now and then one of these deluded individuals, who are to be found in all large cities, gets himself into trouble by attempting to make an arrest; but, as a rule, the mania is harmless and its victims confine themselves to prowling through side streets and looking mysterious. They find great joy also in posing in boarding house circles and hearing folks say in awed undertones, "Do you know Mr. So-and-so is a detective?" It is one of the queerest of all queer phases of city life. - New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Both Are Married.

The ordinary paragrapher in referring to a marriage nearly always says that Mr. John Smith or Mr. James Brown was married to Miss Nellie Green or Miss Fanny White It would lead one to think that the man only was married, while the fact is both were married. The woman is as much married as the man. The man was not simply married to the woman. The woman and the man were married, and the aunouncement should be that Mr. So-andso and Miss So-and-so were married. Rev. Dr. Sunderland wrote a series of articles on this subject some years ago which were published in this city. He laid down the general principle that he did not marry the man to the woman, but that he married the man and the woman, and married one just as much as be did the other. He discountenanced the issning of wedding cards by parents that their daughter was married to any particular person, and said he did not want to perform any marriage ceremony in which any such announcement was made. - Washington Star.

The first recorded thanksgiving was the Hebrew feast of the tabernacles. The New England Thanksgiving dates from 1633. The first national thanks giving was proclaimed by Congres during the Revolutionary war. President Lincoln issued a national proclamation for thanksgiving in 1863 and since that time the President has issued one each year.
